Objectives

Joint Action TERROR's main objectives are to address gaps in health preparedness and to strengthen cross-sectoral work with security, civil protection and health sectors response to biological and chemical terror attacks.

Main outcomes

- Identified gaps and areas in health preparedness for improvement.
- Improved collaboration between health, security and civil protection sectors at operational and strategic level.
- Identified good practices and examples of systems and mechanisms for cross-sectoral and cross-border cooperation.
- Updated clinical and non pharmaceutical management guidelines.
- Guidance on risk and crisis communication.
- Risk assessments on novel threat agents and guidance on health preparedness.
- Improved preparedness on novel threats.

Joint Action TERROR

is a joint effort by health authorities in European countries to improve health preparedness and cross-sectoral cooperation in the event of a biological or chemical terror attack.
